

Alameda County Bicycle Safety Education

MARCH 2021

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Striping bicycling lanes and building bicycle paths is not always enough to get more people riding their bicycles safely. Without learning the skills of bicycling in traffic, it can be scary to navigate city streets, and many people avoid it. Others brave the streets, but ride unsafely. The Alameda County Bicycle Safety Education program was developed to provide safe bicycle riding techniques for bicyclists to ride their bicycles with greater control and environmental awareness to enhance their travel safety.

The Bicycle Safety Education program offers free classes, clinics and regular training on bicycle safety, all of which are conducted in Alameda County. The program includes a variety of class types that cater to different audiences, including classroom and on-road instruction, classes oriented towards adults, teenagers, children and families, with classes in English, Spanish and Chinese for new and experienced bicyclists. All classes educate community members on how to ride safely and confidently with the goals of improving bicycle safety countywide and increasing the confidence of interested cyclists who may have concerns about the safety of bicycling.

PROGRAM BENEFITS

- Educates children, teenagers, adults and families in safe bicycle riding techniques
- Encourages riders to ride their bicycles with greater control, promoting confidence
- Helps riders be environmentally aware, enhancing their travel safety
